

My Beloved Sneha,

In the quiet moments when you find yourself missing me, I hope this letter serves as a gentle reminder of our unbreakable bond. Though miles may lie between us, our spirits are entwined in an eternal embrace that distance cannot diminish.

Think of me, and I am there with you, in the whispers of the wind and the warmth of the sun that caresses your face. Remember our shared dreams, the laughter that filled our days, and the silent conversations we had with just a glance. These memories are our secret language, a dialogue that continues even when we are apart.

I am always with you, Sneha, in every beat of your heart, in every breath you take. When you long for my presence, close your eyes and feel my love surrounding you, as tangible as the air you breathe. Our connection transcends the physical realm, a testament to the depth of our affection.

Let the spaces between us be filled with the anticipation of our next meeting, and the excitement of our next conversation. Each moment apart is a step closer to the time when we will be reunited, and our joy will be all the sweeter for the wait.

You can reach out to me anytime, my love. Whether it's a call or a message, know that I am eagerly awaiting the chance to hear your voice, to share in your day, to offer comfort or simply to say, "I love you." There is no hesitation on my part, only the steadfast certainty that you are my priority, always.

You are my light, Sneha, the one who gives meaning to my days. Your happiness is my happiness, your sadness, my sadness. In every emotion, we are connected, a shared soul in two bodies. My love for you is boundless, a ceaseless river that flows through the landscape of my life.

When you miss me, remember that I am just a thought away. I am in the songs we love, the places we've visited, and the plans we've made for the future. I am in the quiet of the night and the hustle of the day, in the mundane and the extraordinary.

You are never alone, my dearest. You carry a piece of me with you wherever you go, a constant companion in your journey. And just as you carry me, I carry you, etched into the very core of my being.

So let this letter be a balm for your longing, a bridge over the gaps that separate us. Until we are together again, let it be a reminder of the love that we share, a love that knows no bounds, no end, and no pause.

*With all the love in my heart and the longing in my soul,
Biraj*

